Of course, being in the situation where you are having to consider End of Life choices and decisions, whether for yourself or a loved one, is always going to be painful.

Being able to have those 'needed' conversations can be difficult and, for many, they just don't happen which can lead to feelings of deep regret and sadness . . .

But, at this totally free and unique event, held within the beautiful, serene landscapes at GreenAcres Colney, there is an opportunity to come and meet a whole range of local experts and professionals who are experienced in guiding and supporting individuals and families as they navigate these difficult times.

You are warmly invited to bring your curiosities, your questions and meet the professionals within a relaxed and informal setting.

Explore the choices and support that's available locally (which is probably more than you imagine) and leave with the information you require, pointers for having those essential conversations and how you can access what you need.
